I hope that all states agree to settle the Microsoft issue. I can't believe that a judge would keep them from giving computers to our schools so in need of educational tools. Wouldn't it be too tragic for our children and us to reap the benefits immediately rather than wait for years of legislative hocus pocus, "Oops! we spent the money on committees studying the matter. Sorry there just isn't enough to spread around to the masses now."

Hopefully our elected officials will soon become more accountable to the needs of the people instead of the needs of the greedy in commerce. We need Microsoft's help with far more important security issues and inventions of the future. Let's move on elected people.
